Re: In re Prempro, 4:03-CV-01507-WRW
Hill v. Wyeth, 4:05-CV-00546-WRW
Scroggin v. Wyeth, 4:04-CV-01169-WRW

Dear Ms. Littlepage:

When I set the Scroggin punitive damages trial for the date in question (July 20, 2010), Mr. Morris specifically advised he is available at that time, ergo, I assume he will be available for the Hill trial if the Scroggin punitive damages trial gets postponed. Your email would seem to indicate that Mr. Morris would not be available for the punitive damages trial as previously advertised.

Bottom line, if you and Mr. Morris want the Hill case continued, a motion should be filed forthwith, dealing, of course, with Mr. Morris's availability/unavailability as mentioned above.

Unless I am badly mistaken, Mr. Morris revealed that he had a conflict in February when I attempted to set the Scroggin punitive damages trial in February, and I told him, in jest, that he might have to "spread out." I may be serious about this admonition for the July date.

On a completely separate, didactic point, "Jim Morris and myself" should be "Jim Morris and I." "Myself" is most often used as a reflexive pronoun. Oh how I love to be professorial.

Have a nice day.

Cordially,

/s/ Wm. R. Wilson, Jr.

Subject Court's letter re: July trial

Mr. Morgan

Jim Morris and myself are the two lawyers of record for Helen Hill. Both Jim Morris and myself are currently set for trial in Prempro cases in July in Philadelphia (Jim Morris in Buxton v. Wyeth and myself in Henry v. Wyeth). These trials are in conflict with Judge Wilson's trial date for Helen Hill. Should I file an official motion for continuance for the Hill case and if so, how quickly would the court need that motion? (I am currently in trial in Philadelphia but could draft something this weekend, if necessary).

Please let me know.
